Migration Action
VOL XIII NUMBER 1, APRIL 1991

Michele Langfield is a lecturer in the School of Australian and International Studies at Deakin University. She has recently completed a thirty-year history of the Ecumenical Migration Centre, for many years based in Fitzroy, and will talk about the Centre's work with migrants and refugees in the inner suburbs of Melbourne from the 1950s to the 1990s. Her book "Espresso Bar to EMC" is soon to be published by Monash University. The research will also form part of an interactive CD Rom on the development of multiculturalism being produced by the University of Technology, Sydney.

Coffee and tea will be served. All welcome.

Cost: $2 for members of the Fitzroy History Society, $3 for non-members.
