

HISTORY WALK

Fitzroy - Places of Significance

The Belvidere Hotel (now known as the Eastern Hill Hotel) on the corner of Brunswick Street and Victoria Parade, photographed c.1863 by Charles Nettleton. It was from here that the stonemasons resolved to fight for the eight-hour-day. One of the strongest advocates of the movement was Dr Thomas Embling, a resident of Gore Street and the local MLA, who is credited with the slogan, 'Eight hours' labour, eight hours' recreation, eight hours' rest'. The next activity of the FITZROY HISTORY SOCIETY will be a walk on Sunday 30 August, entitled Fitzroy: Places of Significance. It will be led by Robyn Mullens, architect with the Heritage Branch of the Ministry for Planning and Housing. Robyn provides heritage advice to the Historic Buildings Council on permit applications and changes to Fitzroy's significant buildings.

Meet at the former Eastern Hill Hotel at the corner of Victoria Parade and Brunswick Street, Fitzroy, at 10 a.m. sharp. The cost is $2 for members and $3 for non-members. Everyone is welcome. Bring your friends.
